Detailed Action

The Terminal Disclaimer filed 8/8/03 is acceptable and has been entered.

Applicants' arguments and the 37 CFR 1.131 Declaration of Drs. G. J. Nabel and E. G. Nabel are sufficient to overcome the outstanding rejections under 35 USC 103(a).

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 29-34 and 36-42 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

This rejection is maintained for reasons of record in the previous Office Action (Mailed 5/7/03) and for reasons outlined below. This rejection addresses the lack of written description for a p27 gene.

Applicants traverse this rejection by asserting that the term "gene", as used in the instant specification, describes a DNA sequence that encodes the transcribed region. Applicants point to the specification at page 10 where applicants assert that "genes" are described as being under control of regulatory elements and that the specification discusses expressing the p27 gene via an expression vector.

Applicant's arguments filed 8/8/03 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicants do not, in the instant specification define a "gene" as applicants assert. While it appears that applicants use a shorthand method of referring to a coding sequence or cDNA as a gene, applicants do not define a "gene" as a coding sequence of a gene which excludes the regulatory regions of said gene. Indeed, on page 10 of the specification, applicants refer to incorporating "...a therapeutic amount of a gene encoding p27 in a liposome." This terminology encompasses the standard use of the term "gene" as a nucleic acid encompassing coding and regulatory regions (i.e. exons, introns, promoter, enhancer, etc.). Also, given that applicants use the claim language "...nucleic acid comprising a gene encoding...p27", it must be considered that the term gene here reads on the standard use of the term "gene" and reads on the coding and regulatory regions of the nucleic acid encoding p27. The rejection is therefore maintained.

Claims 29-34 and 36-42 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

This rejection pertains to the written description rejection regarding the support for the kit claims.

Art Unit: 1636

Applicants traverse this rejection by amending the claims to delete the term "kit" and substitute the term "combination". Applicants submit that the specification provides support for a combination of a catheter and the various nucleic acids of the invention.

In response, the examiner notes that the specification provides support for a combination of a nucleic acid comprising a gene encoding p27 and a balloon catheter. The specification does not provide support for a combination of the nucleic acid encoding p27 and any catheter. This is a NEW MATTER rejection.

Any rejections not repeated in this Office Action are withdrawn.

No Claims are allowed.

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
